

Academic Writing

Dr. Jeffrey Verhey

In this workshop we will address strategies to improve your academic writing, with an eye to publication. First, we will analyze some common writing problems and anxieties and discuss how to improve your habits.

Next, we will discuss publication strategies, such as analyzing and understanding the expectations of your research community, communicating content effectively within that community, finding the right journal for your research topic, and responding to reviewer's comments. We will close by discussing, in the time remaining, some rhetorical strategies to improve your English writing style.
